

Title	Ryde LGA Urban Bushland Map, 1998. VIS_ID 3960.
Alternative title(s)	RydeLGA_1998_E_3960
Abstract	In November 1998, Ryde Council commissioned a bushland corridor mapping project with the aim of gaining an overview of the extent and type of remnant bushland and other vegetation in the Ryde LGA. The study's main aims were firstly to map all remnant bushland in the Ryde LGA and to digitise the information for use on Council's GIS system. VIS_ID 3960 In August 2000, Council expanded the study to update the vegetation maps and to prepare a comprehensive information database for the management and restoration of bushland and other vegetation in Ryde. This was a further step towards compiling information that would better allow Council to achieve the objectives of Council's Plan of Management for natural areas.

Lineage

The mapping process for the 1998 vegetation map involved a set of digital aerial photographs dated 1998 supplied by Ryde Council. Budget limitations meant that site surveys and visits could not be undertaken for the entire LGA. It was agreed that ground-truthing had to be restricted to a few sites to determine the existence and extent of endangered plant communities on smaller sites where the aerial photographs appeared unclear.
